Corel® Introduces A New Premium Design Suite for Print, Web and Video

CorelDRAW® Premium Suite X5 Delivers Expanded Multimedia Capabilities for Today's Graphics Professionals

Maidenhead, UK – 15 September, 2010 – Corel Corporation today announced CorelDRAW® Premium Suite X5, a new product based on the award-winning CorelDRAW® Graphics Suite. This new release is designed for the graphic design professional that requires an expanded set of capabilities for vector-illustration, website creation, image editing, advanced Flash animation and video editing.

Expanded Design Suite Offers Even Greater Versatility

CorelDRAW Premium Suite X5 is a versatile solution for graphic design professionals who need to create and display visuals across a wide range of media. With an expanded set of web and video output capabilities, users of the Premium Suite will enjoy even greater flexibility and freedom as part of their design workflow.

"Through ongoing discussions with our CorelDRAW community, we know that a significant portion of our users were creating websites and videos. This feedback plays a key role in helping to shape our product strategy and we have responded by delivering an expanded suite that addresses this need for a wider range of output options," said Petter Nordwall, Director International Product Management at Corel. "CorelDRAW Premium Suite X5 is our first step towards a fully integrated multimedia suite consistent with the needs of our users and the requirements of the print and digital media design industry."

More Opportunities to Create with Confidence

In addition to the new website, Flash and video authoring applications, CorelDRAW Premium Suite includes enhanced vector illustration and page layout, image editing and bitmap to vector tracing. The new suite also includes valuable content and enhanced features including a reinvented colour management engine, a variety of enhanced precision tools, a hard-cover guidebook that provides techniques and tips for users of all skill levels. Moreover, CorelDRAW Premium Suite gives access to millions of free and for purchase stock images from leading online photo sites such as Fotolia and iStockphoto®. Users will be able to create with confidence and get started quickly on numerous projects for a wide variety of industries.
